The Class Will

We, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-five, being of sound mind and memory, do make this, our last Will and Testament, in the following manner and form:

We Bequeath:

To Mr. Ward and the teachers, our sincere appreciation for our four years of learning, and our deepest sympathy for the incoming Senior Class.

To the Class of 1936: Our modest and unassuming manners during our year of prestige.

To the Class of 1937: The advice that home is the best place to do home-work.

To the Class of 1938: The encouragement that four years is not so long a period as it seems.

Personal Bequests:

Ruth Butler: To James Phillips, '37, my map of the longest routes to the nearest classes.

Roger Banner: To any successor in my shoe-wiping contests with Mr. Carroll, one whisk broom with which to dust off his trousers.

Richard Martin: To Room 107, a large can of lubricating oil to be used on its chairs.

James Lovenbury: To Mr. Decker, an unbored listener to his daily harangues on depressions, finances, and girls.

George Bliss: To Louis Hervey, '36, my ability to arrive late enough in every class to miss the assignments.

Pauline Hathaway: To Isabel Plekovich, my fulfilled desire to slide down the banisters from 315 to 017.

Ann Curtin: To the lunchroom, my recipe for nonsinkable gingerbread.

Trenor Goodell: To Henry Greenlaw, best wishes for breaking my record runs to the office.

James Carney: To the Future Advertising Managers, best wishes for easier paths to travel.

Charles Mansfield: To anyone who desires to talk in Miss Crosby's room, a free lesson in sign language.

Harry Williams: To my brother, John Williams, my outlandish purple sweater.

Sally Waterman: To some poor freshie who hates to get up in the morning, my ability to slide into my seat at exactly 9 minutes and 59 seconds past eight.

Joan Warren: To Latin B, '36, my supply of cough drops.

Donald Ranard: To the next cadet captain and adjutant, one Sherlock Holmes, No. 4A, Detective set, to track down defective cadets with missing drill tickets.

Jeanne MacCready: To Jo Gifford, a whistle with which to call back the famished seniors who stampede past her into the lunch room.

Gladys Dobson: To Mr. Carroll, a horde of gaudy plaid ties to add atmosphere to his classes.

Ruth Butler: To Miss Atwell, a second floor classroom, so that the "Virgil-Nurtured" Latins of '36 will be deprived of the audience which perches on the sills and competes with Miss Atwell's snappy comebacks.

Edith Horton and Pauline Hathaway: To Joan Kiernan and Jo Gifford, our ability to talk together for hours without saying a thing.

John Kelly: To any fit Junior, my nickname of "Venus".

Her English Classes: To Miss Stone, love, best wishes for future victims, six colons, and a couple of commas.

Dotted i and Crossed t and Little Lively Verbs: To Miss Stone, a life-time of gratitude for her untiring care of and devotion to us.

Helen Rose: To Frances Wilbur, my best pair of seven league boots to shorten the distance of routes by favorite traffic officers.

June Smith: To any admirer of Natalie Wright, the one strand of hair and the piece of blue fuzz from her sweater, which she so generously donated to me in Latin Class.

This, our last Will and Testament, we do declare to be valid, and hereunto affix our hand and seal.

PET PEEVES

JUNE SMITH

Everyone has his pet peeves, and mine take a virulent form.

My first aversion is the children's programs that are heard nightly from 5:00 to 6:30. Have you ever had the peace and quiet of your home disturbed by wild shouts of Bobby Benson with Texas, Windy, Aunt Lily, and Hawker? You who have no youngsters in the family have no idea of my wretchedness, and those who are blessed with these little imps of delight have my sympathy. The first program to rend the air waves is Tom Mix and his "straight shooters". They scream, yell, bellow, and shriek to convince the kiddies that Tom is on the spot. Tom departs in a blaze of glory only to give Jack Armstrong his chance. There's the boy for you! Jack Armstrong! Jack does everything from swimming the Pacific with his hands tied behind his back to carrying the Empire State Building around the block for exercise. He is a veritable Frank Merriwell, and derives all his strength and power from eating Wheaties. And the poor innocent children believe this hoax! Firmly, staunchly, stoutly believe it!! The parade moves on with Little Orphan Annie holding the limelight. Annie, who has been a child of ten for the last seven or eight years, rides over praries, rounds up rustlers, captures bandits, and solves mysteries with the skill of a man of thirty. Ah! but that is because she drinks Ovaltine. Interspersed with these dear children are the programs of Buck Rogers in the thirtieth century, who rides only in rocket ships; Jimmy Allen, the nine-year-old air-pilot; and the Singing Lady with her so-called delightful stories. Bobby Benson, who is in the jungle at the present time fighting tigers, ends the parade. I sigh with relief at 6.30 with Bobby's theme song!

My most intense abhorrence is the movie pest: the movie neighbor who sits and drums on the back of my chair, or kicks his feet against my seat, or keeps time to the music and hums the Star's song. Why bother to let the audience hear Dick Powell or Jeannette MacDonald if Mr. Pest knows that piece of music? Everyone would rather hear him anyhow! But it isn't always a Mr. Pest. Sometimes it's a Mrs. Pest. And the worst bane of all is the woman who has seen the picture before and insists on telling what is going to happen next. Nothing diminishes my interest more than to have this person whisper, loud enough to be heard two blocks away, that Jeremiah Soupkettle murdered Bennis Fishface because Bennis stepped on his pet corn. Then there is the gossip who spoils a dramatic moment by the comment that Clarabelle Horseblanket woke the entire neighborhood by coming home at 9:30. Shocking, the late hours of the younger generation! What are they coming to? If I had my way, I'd muzzle all, or one-half, or, well, at least one-third of all the movie-goers, handcuff them, and tie their feet. Then, perhaps, we should have peace.

May I sometime be delivered from these thorns in the flesh!

RHAPSODY

PAULINE HATHAWAY

I like bright rain sprinkling down
 Upon my hair and face—
And violins that sing and sob,
 Wild flowers in a vase;
A little song sparrow in a tree,
 A rainbow in the sky,
A rippling brook that curves and falls,
 A seagull's mournful cry;
A watermelon, juicy, cold,
 A smooth, green, sloping lawn,
The smell of pine trees after rain,
 And a breathless, cool June morn.

CHANGE

LOIS ELDRIDGE

Pine trees,
Straight and slender,
Silhouettes against the sky
Today.

Hewn logs,
Dead and somber,
Dwellings for mankind
Tomorrow.

WHO

Who rides at a speed that is too great
Will arrive prematurely at St. Peter's gate.
John Martyniak

Who incubates a glad heart and soul
Must some day reach his cherished goal.
Tom Murray

Who finds his friends so very dear
Sometimes wishes they weren't so near.
Ruth Butler

Who stands out doors in warm spring rain
Bursts forth with song in glad refrain.
Tom Murray

Who walks the babe to sleep at night
Oft walks right on till morning light.
James Carney

Who waits for time to take its course
May sadly meet with real remorse.
Mary Hastings

Who hears Rigoletto will surely want more
And feast himself further on Il Trovatore.
Edna Aschiero

John Jones: My girl told me that last night she dreamt that I was a millionaire.

Maier Sawyer: You're lucky; my girl dreams that in the day-time,

J. Lang: It's awfully late; what'll we say to Mr. Bowman?

W. Carney: O, we won't say much; just "Good morning", and he'll say the rest.

REVERIE

JOAN WARREN

To me the loveliest things of life are
Smell of earth just after rain,
A rainbow painted by Iris's brush,
And dew drops, sparkling on grassy plain:

A cheery fire, a book at hand,
Red apples in a bowl near-by,
The splash of surf, receding wave,
And sea-gulls soaring to the sky;

The fragrance wafted from new-mown hay,
Clean clothes just gathered from the line,
The laughing chatter of rippling brook,
And whispering song of lofty pine.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT—BUT

The youthful F. U. W. has been principal of T. H. S. for a quarter of a century.

An athletic instructor we know has a genuine sense of humor.

Our big football hero, Brow, loves to play Tiddledy Winks.

Lyman Briggs adores the women.

Everett Pierce is called out of his room every day about an important assignment.

Charles Mansfield has ceased to pester the girls.

Harry Williams has traveled a whole month minus his good friend, the purple sweater.

Edmund Keough went hunting (on skates) and shot two wooden ducks.

The K in Richard K. Martin's name does not stand for Kingfish.

D. Ranard's name spells the same forwards and backwards—a palindrome.

Mr. Norton is the best cook in Taunton High School.

Jimmie Lovenbury listens to "Little Orphan Annie" every evening.

Bob McClellan is afraid of mice and horses.

All the seniors think the freshmen are great.

Pauline Hathaway can converse in six different languages.

Betty Beers once translated forty extra lines in Latin because she got so much interested in the story.

Marian Henry is going to be a missionary.

Most of us will graduate!

TOWN OFFICIALS ELECTED

By Everett N. Pierce

In one of the hottest contests seen around these parts, Maurice Larocque, Henry Leclair, and Matthew Srocznski were elected first, second, and third selectmen, respectively.

Intense Rivalry Figures in Garbage Portfolio

Richard Kollector Martin defeated Albert Ashcan Mell, his sole opponent, in an ardent race for the position of town garbage collector last night. To show his appreciation to his staunch supporters Martin stated that he personally will collect next week.

Angelo Caras retained his position of school superintendent by winning out over a vast field of candidates: Raymond Carroll, Harold Dovner, Harold Ames, and Tillie Champion, the latter the only woman in the race.

The selectmen have appointed the following executives:

Police Chief—Arnold Rhodes.

Fire Chief—Raymond Anderson.

Tax Collectors—Manuel Philipe, Augustine Mozzone.

Town Treasurer—Tom Murray.

Town Secretary—Ann Curtin.
Postmistress — Jeanne MacCready.

OGPUS SATISFIED WITH GARBAGE COLLECTOR?

In an early interview with Edna Denault, our crackerjack reporter, the executive committee of Messrs. Ranard, Williams, Fitzgibbons, Sawyer, and Musschoot disapproved of newly elected Martin's rank method of sending our garbage to the hogs in South Cow-Path when we have our own hogs in West Cow-Path.

NEWS

Famous Jazz Orchestra to Come to Town

"Gus" Grela and his Orchestra will play at Hall and Hall's ballroom on Tuesday night. The orchestra features the rhythm twins, Shirleigh Lincoln and Anneh Baker, and has been heard over the Arsenault Square-Pretzel Hour. They are managed by Al Grandmont of the Kalaznik Radio Artists' Corporation.

SHORTLY SAID

General Albert Wakefield, our local N. R. A. Administrator, and his secretary, Joe Blanchard, are on a business trip to confer with James Carney, National Chairman, about a fifteen hour week.

SPORTS

Faculty Manager Al Lennox of Yelle University, after a conference with President Trenor Goodell and board of directors, Irving Wyeth, Roger Banner, and Lyman Briggs, today announced the name of their new football coach, Robert McClellan, and his assistant, Thomas Kiernan. Mr. Lennox stated that Yelle had lost 30 consecutive games and they wanted to keep their reputation, hence the new coach.

Bob Stanton Loses No Hit Game at Rice Field

Stanton, pitching for Max Dovner's Butchers, lost a no-hit game against Bill O'Brien's Restaurant. Stanton allowed 15 walks the first inning, but after eight hours, he tightened up and did not allow a single hit. The final score was 12 to 0 in favor of the Restaurant Boys.

Stanton	pitcher	Brady
Killian	l. field	Tweedy
Turkalo	1 base	Burgess
Reckard	r. field	De Young
Worthington	2 base	Boudreau

Isaacs	c. field	Wilbur

Sevo Dimitri, Professor at Hopkins University, will give a lecture tomorrow evening, at Main Hall. He will explain his latest invention for using the internal contents of the holes in doughnuts to stuff macaroni.

Kelly Brings Home the Bacon

John Kelly, famous hunter and explorer, brought back to this country a petracylinx, a very rare animal, captured by Kelly in the African Wilds while on a hunting expedition. He was accompanied by Professors Cook, Butler, and Barber of the Wood and Field Institute of Science; Doctors Surgens, Short, and Tickell, and Assistant Kenneth Bellamy and Wilfrid Cash.

SOCIALITES AT BARN DANCE

Miss Betty Beers, the town belle, tendered a barn dance for her friend, Janet Dunbar, another belle, in honor of Miss Dunbar's approaching marriage. The dance was held in Malo's barn and was a huge success as all the socialites of the town were there. Among those present were Charlotte Manner, Lois Eldridge, Hilda Hammett, Edith Horton, Joanna Warren, Hon. Howard Lincoln, Albert Mitchell, Esq., William Carney, and Rev. Douglas Smerdon. Music was furnished by John Dennen and his Boys.

TREASURE CHEST

MILDRED H. MURRAY

Silver sky,
Clouds pearl-grey,
The warm brown earth
Like a jeweled tray:

Leaves of gold
And ruby red,
Stealthily falling
From oaks o'erhead:
Sighing wind,
Diamond rain,—
I'm glad that autumn's
Here again.

BOOK FRIENDS

LOIS ELDREDGE

A fireplace is a cozy spot to greet
Book friends, both those of low and high degree;
Bearers of sadness and heralds of glee
From many lands and distant climes I meet
Upon my hearth. These friends make my life sweet
And bring new joys, new interests to me;
High lights of life and shadows dark I see
Through them, as on they pass with silent feet.

And as I read, I ruminate each one,
Pondering faults and virtues as I will,
The part each has to play and how each looks.
These silent folk have never tried to shun
My company; they linger with me still;
Fast friends, you see, are characters in books.

BAGATELLES

Baron chooses to absent himself on Tuesdays . . . Trenor Goodell is the Little Corporal . . . Roger Banner winks at the passing blondes . . . Albert Mitchell ejaculates "O, my dear."

Eight-cylinder Seniors sometimes run on three-cylinder cars . . . What a charming sister the Major has . . . Ann Curtin joins just one more club . . . Blanche Perreault performs on the gym ropes like a Tarzan . . . Charles Weygand's favorite parking place is Whitehill Street . . . Thanks to the new International Dictionary, Charles O'Brien's troubles about the spelling of judgment are over.

Arsenault's only knowledge of English is that he dozes in 107 . . . Weygand's eyes turn pink when iodine is mentioned . . . Paska hides his red canoe in plain sight. Joe Blanchard weeps at the movies . . . John Jones once got A in English.

Harry Williams' purple sweater adds color to our high school landscape . . . William Nickolds splits the seconds on arriving at school . . . June Smith loves white sweaters . . . Doris Hill screams a blood-curdler whenever she spies a mouse.

Richard Martin believes that modesty is the best policy . . . Too bad that Arnold Rhodes' deep voice is seldom heard by his fellow students in English class.

Bob Stanton thanks the girls who do his studies for him by sending them Christmas cards . . . Margaret Whitchurch's pictures were recently confiscated. We wonder whether the teacher who confiscated them wanted to see her pictures, or just wanted to illustrate the definition of the word confiscate.

John Kelly likes mythological goddesses (one of them lives in Somerset) . . . Marian Henry is a good friend of Mahatma Ghandi and Hitler. Also she has driven Mussolini's car . . . Irving Wyeth reads books in the bathtub . . . Eunice Holt likes to write poetry . . . It's hard to beat Keough's smile . . . Martin knows how to pick out the places for after-drill merriment . . . Raymond King is an expert carpenter.

TRIVIA

JUNE SMITH

It's the little things that make us gay:
Little things done in a pleasant way,
Little things said with a twinkling eye,
Little things done without a sigh:
Little things seen like flowers and bees,
Little things heard like a summer's breeze,
Little things smelled like home-made bread,
Little things felt like a child's curly head,
A breeze, and flowers, and a happy smile:
These are things that make life worthwhile.

DESOLATION

ANN CURTIN

The old dark house
Sits on the moor,
Alone in wind-swept splendor;
The throbbing pulse of human life
Is gone now many years.
Silence lies there,
Secret and still;
A lost wind whimpers sadly,
And faint moonbeams
Play in the webs
Of moldy corners.

FUNNY BONES

Mr. Norton: I want a little attention!

Voice from rear: You're getting as little as possible.

Rushing from the burning hotel in very flimsy silken negligee, our blushing vice president lamented: "It's not the heat, it's the humility."
